On April 3 Mrs. Leake sat at the window of her residence nearly all the afternoon looking for her daughter, whom she expected to arrive from San Mateo. At 4 o'clock she saw a couple coming up the street, one of whom she immediately recognized as Durrant, but at first she was puzzled over the identity of the girl. She first thought that the young lady was Lucille Turner, but as the couple came nearer Mrs. Leake recognized the girl as Blanche Lamont. Miss Lamont wore a short, schoolgirl's dress and carried a package of school-

She Walted a Long Time, but household duties finally called her to another part of her flat and she was obliged to give up the vigil. Mrs. Leake's testimony completes the chain of evidence against Durrant. Three schoolgirls saw Durrant and Blanche Laynont riding on a Powell street car at 3:30 on the day that Miss Lamont disappeared. Attorney Quinlan saw the couple a few blocks from the church a few minutes before 4 o'clock. Now comes Mrs. Leake who says she saw Durrant and Miss Lamont enter the church only a few minutes later. George King, the organist, has already testified that he entered the church about 5 o'clook

United States district indge in Arkansas instructed a inry that everywhere except within his own house the law requires a man to run away and do his best to escape from an assailant before killing him. The indge further said that when assaulted on his own premises, but outside of his house, man must show his sense of danger by great bodily harm can be accepted.

This instruction was handed down from ancient times when weapons of assault consisted of knives, bludgeous. swords, etc., which an active man had some chance of escaping. But it is not applicable to these days of revolvers and winchesters, whose bullets no man can dodge or outrun, and the United States supreme court has sent it to the black letter lumber garret.
